

ASSISTANT PROFESSOR OF PSYCHOLOGY

University of Houston-Clear Lake (UHCL) invites applications for a tenure-track position as Assistant Professor of Psychology with specialization in learning or behavior analysis, beginning August 2010. Responsibilities include teaching three classes each semester (fall and spring), carrying out a productive program of research (area open) involving students, supervising graduate student research projects, advising, and participating in school and departmental committees. The successful candidate will teach undergraduate and master's level courses in learning and maintain an operant rat laboratory for teaching and research. Special consideration will also be given to candidates who can teach a master's level research methods and statistics class or other core psychology courses. Requirements for the position include a doctorate in Experimental Psychology, Behavior Analysis, Clinical Psychology or related field; evidence of research potential, and evidence of ability to effectively teach a diverse student body.

UHCL is an upper-level university (juniors, seniors, and master's students) adjacent to NASA-Johnson Space Center. UHCL is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer supporting workplace diversity. The program particularly seeks candidates who can enhance campus diversity.

Applications accepted only online at <https://jobs.uhcl.edu>. To apply, please complete the online faculty application and include a current curriculum vita and letter of interest with statement of teaching and research interests. In addition, please mail three letters of reference, graduate transcripts, and evidence of teaching excellence (such as teaching evaluation summaries) to:

Chair, Learning Psychology Search Committee, MC 416
University of Houston-Clear Lake
